RIGHT HERE IN OUR HANDS

Saya's and her dad's hands tingle with life.

But recently, their hands do not move the way they were moving before
When a feeling starts to grow inside Saya, her hands make her do things that are not like her and that she will sometimes regret. Her dad's hands are now heavy as a ship's anchor and prevent him from performing the simplest gestures of everyday life.

In this suspended time, Saya's and her dad's hands choreograph their emotions and try to meet to calm each other, at least for a moment.
