VENISON: AS SIMPLE AS THAT !

by Michael Keller and Andreas Seel

CONTENT:

For anybody who still approaches the preparation of game with an overdose of respect, game sommelier Michael Keller and chef Andreas Seel supply the appropriate guide to pave your way to the noble meat. They describe the main game species in great detail, and provide step-by-step instructions to treatment complete with coarse and fine cutting and further processing up to the kitchen-ready product.

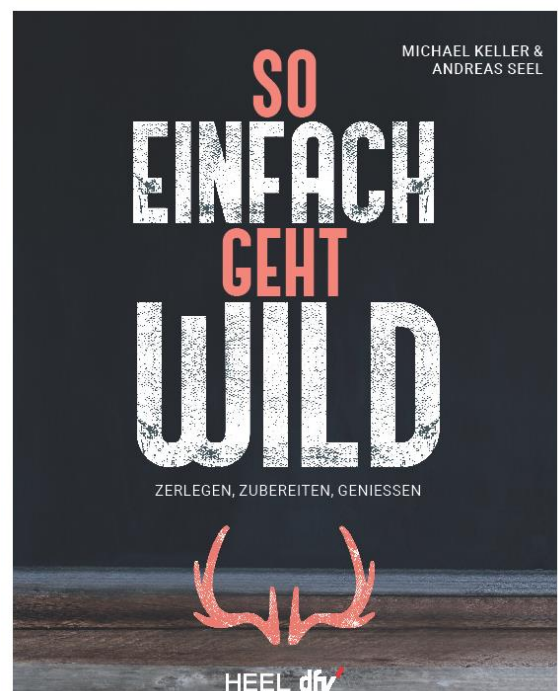

Great recipes for homemade sausages, burgers, steaks, skewers and many more round off the book, featuring different preparation methods on the grill, in the pot or in the pan. The book will appeal to hunters, hobby cooks and barbecue enthusiasts alike, whether cooking with this precious and nearly fat-free meat for the first time or whether calling themselves sophisticated and experienced cooks.

The authors: Michael Keller is a master butcher, hunter, meat & game sommelier and an expert lecturer on this subject. He has already published several specialist books and won the trophy at the Californian World Butcher's Challenge with his German team in 2022. Andreas Seel is a trained chef and works as teacher at a vocational school.

HOW TO PREPARE GERMAN SAUSAGES

by Klaus Mann and Achim Reske

CONTENT:

This new handbook is based on the German standard reference work for professionals on the traditional production of meat products. The recipes, which were previously only aimed at the specialised public, are now also implemented by two professionals for the amateur sausage maker, clearly explained and illustrated in detail with step-by-step instructions. This means that even beginners with no previous knowledge and advanced cooks can make the professional recipes themselves. In addition to the list of ingredients, quantities in standard household sizes and the handling of the required equipment are included, as well as information on the waiting and storage time for each type of sausage.

The authors: Klaus Mann is a veterinary surgeon and passionate hunter. As an ambitious and experienced hobby sausage maker, he knows the really important tricks for beginners and advanced self-sausage makers. Achim Reske is a trained master butcher and specialized in sausages made of game. His expertise is also based on his many years of experience as the owner of the regionally leading game butcher's shop.

THE NEW BBQ BIBLE

EVERYTHING GRILLERS NEED TO KNOW

by SizzleBrothers

CONTENT:

The SizzleBrothers - Hannes, Julian, Corbinian und Alex - are four full-blooded grillers who personify fire and passion on the barbecue, as everyone can see on their YouTube channels and podcasts regularly reaching many thousands of barbecue enthusiasts. Their special combination of concentrated knowledge and humour make them as likeable as popular among their large community of followers.

They now have summarised all their experience and knowledge in this comprehensive and ultimate BBQ bible: with more than 170 pages of barbecue knowledge, techniques and tutorials on barbecue types, many practical instructions on how to clean properly, burn in cast iron, on steak cuts and much more.

On the other hand, you will find a great collection of tried-and-tested recipes from meat and poultry to burgers, veggies and desserts with great recipe instructions for the "Holy Trinity of BBQ": ribs, pulled pork and brisket.

Last but not least: with most recipes there is a link to the corresponding YouTube video in order to watch the procedure first and see how it works best for you.

AMORE PER GUSTO MY ITALIAN KITCHEN

by Stefania Lettini

CONTENT:

For all lovers of true Italian cooking, this beautiful new volume is not to be missed! Stefania Lettini, whose family originates from Puglia, spreads out an atmospheric selection of delicious traditional dishes and desserts originating from the various 20 Italian regions. Starting with an overview on the different provinces and a depiction of their typical dishes and ingredients, the book offers a fine selection of recipes reflecting these respective special features.

With every region, she also highlights some typical products in the form of a product guide, stepping a bit deeper into textures, flavours and preparation, along with portraits of producers which make us feel their passion for what they do.

The author Stefania Lettini, not only well-known through regular TV appearances, runs her own shop offering Italian food, delicacies and wines carefully selected from suppliers along with online tastings to be individually arranged. Furthermore, she is also in charge of the introduction of Italian products to the German market on behalf of the Italian Chamber of Commerce. Her refined recipes and numerous ideas inspired by Italian lifestyle can also be found on her blog <https://lettinis.de> and her YouTube channel.

BRAND NAMING FUN FACTS

by Bernd Samland, PhD

CONTENT:

This book takes you on a journey to discover how 100 brand names came into being - curious facts, exciting stories and interesting background information about all these well-known brands we encounter every day.

Author and brand columnist Bernd Samland, himself a developer of well-known brand names, answers questions such as:

- Why would there have been no American Barbie without the German Bild newspaper?
- Which chocolate bar owes its name to a horse and why?
- What's wrong with Škoda and why was the first Mustang car a lorry?
- What does Bluetooth have to do with blue teeth and why is the Johnnie Walker bottle square?

This book covers all this and much more in a well-researched and entertaining way - for anyone interested in brands, marketing, language and economic history.

The author, with a university degree in politics, economy and communications, is founder of a brand agency which introduced more than 2,000 brand names during the recent 30 years. He further worked as head of press for various TV channels, published numerous specialized books on advertising and branding, and works as a lecturer for a number of universities.

POLITICAL JOKES FROM PUTIN'S RUSSIA

by Prof. Christine Engel

CONTENT:

Slavicist professor Christine Engel has collected and commented on jokes about the situation in Russia on five Russian platforms. Political jokes have always been used to protest against dictators, to unite like-minded people, but also to provide individual psychological relief. The multi-faceted, clever, pointed little stories allow multi-layered insights into the mood and situation in the strictly censored country and reward the reader with a laugh.

This collection of jokes has its finger on the pulse of the times - at a time when there is nothing more important than preserving a sense of humour!

*Ivan Ivanovich receives a call-up notice. He asks: "Who are we fighting with?"
"Well, with the fascists."
"Yes, and against whom?"*

The author: Professor Christine Engel is a literary and cultural scholar at the Institute for Slavic Studies at the University of Innsbruck. Her research focuses on Russian literature, culture and film with topics such as cultural orientation patterns in contemporary Russia. She is a member of the International Consortium for European Cultural Studies, which has organised summer academies on Russian and European cultural studies topics.

BUCKET LIST FOR SMART WOMEN

100 THINGS To ENJOY THE MADNESS OF BEING A WOMAN

by Sabine Wachtel

CONTENT:

Here comes a funny and quirky list of ideas and challenges every woman should look for!

Based on the idea that accomplished and matured women, though being equipped with a wealth of life experience, often have less confidence in themselves than 20 years olds, this is meant as a basis and motivation to clean up your life and look out for the things which really matter to you and contribute to your well-being.

A great gift for (girl)friends, pals and besties – get inspired and check out 100 ideas to enrich your life!

The author Sabina Wachtel, born in 1967, is an entrepreneur, speaker, author and columnist. She runs an agency which consults top managers from business, politics and sports with regards to dress code and style, and also appears in several German TV programmes. Her first book, published ten years ago and aiming at “all women who don't want to shoot themselves at the age of 40”, was a real bestseller in Germany.

LAND & WERKEN SERIES:

YOUR SELF-SUFFICIENT BACKYARD GARDEN

by Axel Gutjahr

CONTENT:

Self-sufficiency in food is not a recent invention. Today, the most important motivations are the desire for higher quality produce and the desire to lighten the burden on one's wallet. Such savings can often be realised with just a few kitchen herbs to an extent that some people do not think possible.

The first step is to analyse what capacities are available in terms of time, space, soil quality, storage possibilities and, if necessary, the prerequisites for largely species-appropriate animal husbandry. The author guides you step-by-step to your own self-sufficient garden.

The author has been passionate about plants and animals since his earliest childhood. The kitchen serves as his "field of experimentation", where he enjoys creating new jam, game and tea flavours as well as liqueurs. He has written 60 non-fiction books, including several children's books.
