- Abort signals as an important communication channel for dogs

Abort signals are an important form of communication for dogs. Many dog owners perceive abort signals as aggression or provocation. But is this impression correct? The "Dogwatcher" team from Berlin has observed and videotaped various abort signals in mixed groups of dogs. In their analysis in text, images and film, the team pursued the question of whether the different termination signals also have different meanings. Their results represent an important contribution to behavioral research that helps us to better understand our own four-legged friends.
