The story of Ukraine – one and threefold, always caught halfway between Europe and Russia. The legacies of Nazism and communism. The corrupt but prosperous years of independence and neutrality between East and West. The Russian and Western interferences that began tugging at the country. The two “colored” and “spontaneous” revolts that overturned U.S. – disliked elections. The Biden family’s business interests. America’s refusal to accept the end of its global hegemony and its attempt, after winning the Cold War, to overwin it at Russia’s expense – a Russia that, after many blows, wants to matter again.

The civil war between Kyiv’s pro-Western governments and the Russophone and Russophile peoples of the Southeast. The two peace agreements signed in Minsk only to be disregarded and used to prepare for the final conflict. Zelensky’s turnarounds and Putin’s invasion. The Istanbul negotiations accepted by Kyiv and Moscow but sabotaged by NATO, as were later mediations by the Pope and Xi Jinping. And the suicide of a Europe with no more statesmen, ruled by war fools more concerned with saving face than saving lives.

In the last 20 years, who entered Ukraine first: Russia or NATO? Why is the conflict-talked about only from 2022, when it has raged since 2014? And why has every peace negotiation been betrayed or sabotaged?

This chronicle of the Ten-Year War tells the story of a country torn, devoured, and destroyed by two opposing imperialisms.

In the beginning was the Diaspora of the Jews, expelled from their land by the Romans after the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 AD, dispersed throughout the world for 17 centuries. Then came an endless series of dominations and persecutions until the late 19th and early 20th centuries, when Zionism theorized and organized the return home. The Holocaust – the extermination of six million Jews at the hands of the Nazis – did the rest.

In 1947, the UN partitioned Transjordan Palestine into two states: one Jewish and one Arab-Palestinian. But only the former came into being. Arab leaders gambled away the Palestinians, victims of their “brothers” as well as their Israeli enemies, in the Russian roulette of wars and terrorism. Israel returned the territories it occupied to the only Arab country that, in 1978, accepted to recognize it and make peace: Egypt. Then in 1993, the PLO under Arafat did the same with Israeli Prime Minister Rabin.

Between ups and downs, violence and attacks, massacres and grievances on both sides, came the Israeli withdrawal from Gaza by hawkish Prime Minister Sharon, who was then incapacitated by a stroke, paving the way for Netanyahu's long and dark era. Netanyahu sabotaged the peace process with ever new Jewish settlements in the West Bank, even supporting Hamas to weaken the moderate Abu Mazen, and ultimately put Israel definitively in the wrong. Marco Travaglio recounts the Israeli-Palestinian Hundred Years' War with clarity and concision, far from the opposing fan bases.

In this new book, Alessandro Orsini discusses the war in Ukraine and the bombing of Gaza, dismantling clichés and fake news spread by mainstream media. With his simple and direct prose, Orsini draws on sociological theory to provide a new interpretation of ongoing wars, challenging the mental frameworks through which the Eurocentric man – driven by prejudice and platitudes – perceives, judges, and evaluates international politics. For the first time in Italy, the book introduces the literature on State terrorism, which Orsini applies to the case of Israel.

The first chapter examines the superiority complexes that led the West to underestimate and mock Russia. The second focuses on Hamas and the October 7, 2023 attack. The third analyzes the bombing of Gaza and the Israeli regime in the Palestinian territories. The fourth offers four lessons on scientific thinking to learn how to analyze international politics without Eurocentric superiority complexes. The fifth presents Orsini's forecasts on the war in Ukraine and introduces the epistemological debate on prediction in the social sciences, with very simple examples tied to Putin's invasion.

This volume answers the most pressing questions of the moment.

The first part reconstructs the crucial stages of the clash between NATO and Russia from 1999 to the present. The second exposes Italy's cultural backwardness on international security and explains the American strategy of bleeding Russia dry, introducing Mearsheimer's strategic thought. The third reveals Orsini's political-cultural project and how he pursues it through the media to fight against the colonization of everyday life by the system. The fourth analyzes the strategies used by mainstream media to distort information in favor of the West's war policies.

The book concludes with an explanation of Max Weber's method of interpretive sociology and includes Orsini's report on Ukraine, presented in the Senate on December 4, 2018.

ALESSANDRO ORSINI

In the latest European elections, only 48.31% of eligible voters cast their ballots in Italy. In 1979, during the first elections, turnout was 85.65%. Europe, including Italy, is facing the worst political, social, demographic, and value crisis in its history. Yet the abandonment of the ballot box is due to another factor: the awareness of living in a deviated democracy.

Millions choose not to vote because they believe decisions are no longer made in parliaments but elsewhere; they think big businessmen and CEOs of investment funds or arms manufacturers matter more than ministers and MPs. Citizens demand to stay away from conflicts, yet politicians – or those pulling the strings – do nothing but fuel them. A faltering democracy is further distorted by the media, which have become echo chambers for fake news spread by warmongering politicians, those who lie about the war in Ukraine, or those who enable genocide in Gaza. Europeans want rights, not weapons, yet the European Commission, lying about Moscow's intentions, pushes for a rearmament plan that can only increase the risk of global catastrophe.

In light of all this, does it still make sense to speak of democracy?

ALESSANDRO DI BATTISTA

In 2018, he chose not to run again in the general elections in order to focus on writing and producing documentaries. Nevertheless, he contributed to the Five Star Movement's victory by carrying out a nationwide tour across Italy. After being the most voted at the Movement's General Assembly, he decided to leave the Five Star Movement following its support for the Draghi government.

Already the author of documentaries on Iran, Latin America, Russia, and Palestinian refugee camps – produced for TvLoft – as well as reports for Il Fatto Quotidiano, since 2023 he has been performing in theaters across Italy with two monologues: one about the Assange case and the other about the genocide in Palestine. He founded a cultural association called Schierarsi (“To Take Sides”). Scomode verità (Uncomfortable Truths) is his latest bestseller.
